1,000 acre high-tech development planned for city

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The city of Romulus may soon become home to a billion dollar mixed-use development complex.

A Birmingham real estate broker has assembled almost 1,000 acres of land north of the airport, between Wayne and Venoy roads.

The proposed development will include hotels, a high-tech manufacturing center, high-rise apartments, a senior citizens center, a golf course, two lakes and corporate education complex.

Octogenarian Don Marentette, chairman of Marentette Real Estate Corp. in Bloomfield Hills told Associated Newspapers Monday, "This is no ordinary development project. It's a big project that's going to fly. With involvement by different developers, the project should be near complete within 15 years. Right now, we just want a solid foundation."

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally affirmed the project initiated by her administration in 1983 when she assumed the office of mayor. At that time an economic development strategy for the city of Romulus was developed. Today, an artist rendering of the proposed complex hangs on the wall in the mayor's office.

"With two spring-fed lakes and a golf course, the area seemed a natural to us from the beginning. In 1983, we conducted several economic development strategy meetings which Mr. Marentette attended. He and a partner then set out to acquire land in the area.

"We talked about local business climate. The city encourages good development and will cooperate with developers to achieve their goal. We looked to provide a good employment base. Something that will enhance the community.

“With two spring-fed lakes and a golf course, the area seemed a natural to us from the beginning.”

"Romulus offers a superb location with a great variety of transportation modes for area businesses. "Just-in-time-inventory" was created just for Romulus. Anything can be shipped anywhere in the world within a day. It's the immediacy of transportation that suggests Romulus is a focal point for major development in the southeast Michigan region," she explained.

The proposed development does at this time include the 112 acre Shady Hollow Golf Club on Smith Road and 365 acres of the Moore Brothers' Sand and Gravel Company on Henry Ruff Road.

"In the near future, we hope to meet with the landowners and develop a master plan for the area. We have high expectations and will set high standards for this development. Nothing substandard about it. This will be the jewel of Romulus," McAnally projected.

"Mr. Marentette has very substantial backing. I've checked it out. He has the money and the ability. I'm thoroughly convinced this project is favorable for Romulus. But I will reserve celebration till later," she remarked.

Gardener plants local pride

Lily Flanary in her garden

Although traffic noisely passes by on Eureka Road in front of her home and planes roar overhead from nearby Metro Airport, the front yard of Lily Flanary is a flowering oasis the nearby sea of concrete and asphalt.

She and her daughter, Delores Middleton, have turned the small front yard of their townhouse apartment into a garden abundant with phlox, geraniums, hydrangeas, lilies, roses and salvia. A small plum tree - not too pretty, but the birds love it - stands in a circular flower bed.

Flanary has neatly laid out the landscaping so that, although abundant, the plantings are orderly and attractive. She claims that the watering and weeding do not take much of her time, but passersby notice the two women working in their garden almost continually.

Limited by her health, Flanary provides the expertise for the gardening and does some of the weeding while leaving the heavier work to her daughter. Flanary, a native of Virginia, learned the art of gardening from her mother and likewise is passing her knowledge down to her daughter.

The two women have lived in their townhouse for just over a year, so their gardening in that location has just begun, they said. Plans are underway to plant a three-color rainbow tree in the yard next year, in addition to nurturing their hibiscus, dahlias, tulips, dogwood, lilacs and snowball bushes.

During the winter months, the women browse through the nursery catalogs and make their selections - mostly from Jackson & Perkins, they said. In the spring, they may select a few plantings and seedlings from the local nurseries and then they begin their tender, loving care of their garden.

"There is a fortune in here," Flanary said, pointing at the flower beds. "I believe in using fertilizer and it costs quite a lot to buy the plants and keep them up."

Flanary confided that "cow manure is the best fertilizer." She also indicated that the only way to maintain a garden in the 90 degree weather is to "keep on watering." Although we are several months away from worrying about frost, she passed along a tip for dealing with late spring frosts that she learned from her mother - water the frost touched plants with cold water, she said.

The women's yard is an attention-getter, and has prompted many compliments and comments from neighbors and passersby, they said. Best of all, it is a joy to them.

"There is nowhere closer to God than in a garden," Flanary said.

Local minority business receives major loan

A local minority business was recently voted the number one piping contractor by the United States Chamber of Commerce and last week, that company, Downriver Precision Piping Inc. of Romulus received a major loan initiated by the Downriver Community Conference.

"The $730,000 loan is composed of $50,000 from the Downriver Metroplex Alliance loan fund, administered by the Downriver Community Conference; $500,000 from Manufacturers National Bank; and $150,000 from the Michigan Strategic Fund," according to Stefanie Ott-O'Toole, director of media relations with the Downriver Metroplex Alliance. Funding will be used for working capital to accomplish pending major automotive and government contracts.

The Downriver Metroplex Alliance is a public and private partnership dedicated to unified community action in the areas of economic and cultural improvement and growth, according to Ott-O'Toole. It is sponsored by the Downriver Community Conference (DCC).

This will be the first Romulus business to receive substantial assistance from the DCC since the city of Romulus joined the DCC and its consortium of almost 20 downriver communities last fall.

"This is a life saver. This money will help us to remain competitive and allow a cash flow," said Juan A. Quiroz, president of Downriver Precision Piping, Inc., who added that the loan helped turn the company around. "Of even greater significance is the fact that these Downriver agencies have shown confidence in our abilities," he said.

His firm employs nine full-time employees but, depending on the job, has hired up to 100 contingent plumbers and pipe fitters from the local union hall.

"The company started with $2,500. Now General Motors alone has paid us $7 million for different jobs at several locations. Our single biggest job was with the Dodge City plant of Chrysler. We pocketed $2.5 million on that job. We've provided 40 percent of all the piping at the General Motors Ploetown plant. We'll be working on the Cobo Hall expansion and with the Detroit Water and Sewer Department," said Quiroz who just minutes before stepped off a plane from Kansas City checking out yet another job with General Motors.

Quiroz, who is Hispanic, resides in Allen Park but formerly lived in Ecorse. "When people ask me where I'm from, I tell them I'm from the coast. When they ask what part, I say, the E-coast. I was raised in Ecorse," he stated with pride at the press conference last week when the loan announcement was made.

He opened his business on Northline Road six years ago. The company will relocate on several recently acquired acres at the corner of Ecorse and Wayne Roads in the near future.

"You would have to be blind not to see the growth and its potential here in Romulus. That's why we decided to stay," Quiroz replied after Mayor Beverly McAnally asked why he liked Romulus.

"The city of Romulus will help guide you through the maze of bureaucracy within a reasonable time frame and make it easy for your company. We can help substantially, up to 10 percent of the cost," encouraged McAnally.

"We'd like to promote hometown businesses and hope you buy local first," said McAnally. Quiroz agreed and added they already do a substantial amount of business in the area.

"This program is known throughout the state and should serve as the catalyst for other businesses in the Romulus area," said William Cheff, manager of the Small Business Center at the DCC.

The revolving loan is funded by the United States Economic Development Administration and the Michigan Department of Commerce.

County closes juvenile court

The out-county court of the Wayne County Juvenile Court on Henry Ruff Road in Romulus will be closed, effective immediately.

The announcement came last week from the office of Eleanor Austin, director of court services who cited federal budget cuts as the reason for the closing of the facility.

"A crisis has resulted from a mandatory $600,000 cut to balance the Wayne County Court budget," she said. "A number of concessions have been made across the board. Basically, the clerical staff will be moved downtown and similar functions will be combined."

The court will not be totally closed, according to Romulus Youth Police Officer John Smagner, but will still be open for traffic matters. "All juvenile cases will be referred to 1025 East Forest Avenue in Detroit. The transfer should be complete in 30 days," he said.

"The branch will still be available for police departments to drop-off complaints and for uncontested traffic matters. Case workers and probation officers also will still be able to use the court facilities. All other hearings will be conducted at the main court,"

"The transfer has been set up to create the least amount of disruption. These changes do not impair our ability to administer the needs of the local community. The basic services will still be provided," she stated.

"A new budget will go into effect Dec. 1. At that time we hope to restore the juvenile court system in Romulus. In the meantime, this should pose only a slight problem for residents in Western Wayne County," she said.

No employees have been laid-off because of the budget cuts at this time, according to Austin.

R.S.V.P. Council meeting cancelled

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

It was a no show and a no go for the city of Romulus council meeting Monday night. For the first time in council history, according to council secretary Mary Hatten, "Not enough council members showed up to conduct a meeting."

"If there is not a quorum, a majority of four out of the seven council members, the meeting must be cancelled and called the next day, according to the city charter," said Hatten.

The councilmembers present were: Barry Baumann, Noah Bergeron and Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks.

Those councilmembers not in attendance were: Fred Block, Alan Lambert, Ellis Pennington and William Wadsworth.

Two members called to notify council they would not appear. "Block is on vacation and gave sufficient notice. This is an unusual circumstance and quite embarrassing," Hatten confessed.

"The public hearings were conducted because they were publicized and the public appeared. Awards were presented to Police Chief Charles Wilmoth and former volunteer fireman Jim Hollis. Tomorrow they will be officially recognized at our official meeting. It's a disappointment and an inconvenience to all our citizens," noted Banks.

Accordion player loves classics

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Because she's number two, Mary Anne Orgovan tries harder. Most any day she will practice with her accordion up to five hours. She has played the instrument for 11 years.

Such persistence and diligence paid off this month when she was recognized as the second top accordion player in the nation at the American Guild of Music annual competition in Nashville.

The 16-year-old Romulus High School Junior also earned an invitation to East Germany for her participation in an award winning accordion sextet. Orgavan maintains a grade point average of 3.6 and also earned a place in the National Honor Society. She is impatiently awaiting the word about her acceptance to the world championship.

"It's exciting," she said. "I don't think I would like to be a performer with an accordion. I will probably go into music management. I do know, I have to be around music."

Her parents, Irene and Andrew Orgovan, are obviously excited and encouraging. According to her father, the entire family is musical.

"This isn't too unusual. Her great-grandfather who played the violin was considered near great. Another grandfather sang in the Detroit Symphony during the 1940s. Her only brother, Andy, played the tuba and now plays the guitar in church. Her only sister, Susie, played the clarinet and bassoon. Both play the accordion," he said matter-of-factly.

"Mary Anne's mother and I do not however, play any instrument," he joked.

Orgovan began her musical career at the age of 5. When she was 10-years-old she played at her brother's wedding with favorable responses. "It was fun," she said. "But I've never been paid," she added.

She presently attends Dearborn Music Center in Dearborn Heights and placed first in the regional competition before her second place honors at Nashville.

The competition in Nashville saw entries of all types of instruments in a variety of categories such as age and experience.

She also won honors with participation in the Dearborn Accordion Orchestra, a group of 30 accordion players.

"I like accordion because it's different. Most people think of weddings and polkas. It's more than that. The accordion is more dynamic than most instruments," she explained.

Pedestrian killed in hit-and-run

While walking to his grandmother's house after his car stalled, a Romulus man was killed by a hit-and-run driver.

James Edward Bates, Jr., 20, of Wick Road in Romulus was pronounced dead on arrival at Westland Medical Center shortly after he was hit by a vehicle on Merriman Road south of Ecorse about 12:40 a.m. Saturday.

"The victim was struck by two cars, one of which failed to stop," sited Romulus Lieutenant Ken Kraus.

"He was apparently standing on the right side of Merriman Road in the northbound lane. He was struck by a northbound vehicle which failed to stop. Bates was knocked into the other lane and struck by an oncoming car which did stop," he said.

"The suspected vehicle is a white taxicab with an orange strip along the middle of the side. The case is still under further investigation," noted Kraus.

James Edward Bates, Jr., 20, was born in Romulus and attended Romulus schools. He had been an employee of Prospect Steel in Detroit for two years. His hobbies included hunting and fishing.

He was the only child of Pauleda F. and James E. Bates, Sr. of Romulus and is also survived by: a step-brother, Marcus R. Montgomery of Romulus and a step-sister, Debra Bates of

Funeral services were conducted by Evangelist Joe Hickman of the Church of Christ in Romulus at Baum-Crane Funeral Home yesterday. Interment was at Michigan Memorial Park in Flat Rock.

romulus news in brief

"YOU'RE CLOSER TO graduation than you think," said Ed Clark, Romulus Adult Education teacher. He reminded adults who wish to complete their high school education that early registration for fall classes is beginning. Day and evening classes begin Monday, Sept. 15, for adults who wish to complete their high school education. They are urged to contact the Romulus Adult High School Education office at 941-0610, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday.

According to Clark, "Free Graduation Equivalent Diplomas are offered. Successful completion of the test earns a high school equivalency certificate from the Michigan Department of Education."

Clark reminded adults that the program awards credit for such activities as work experience, military service, apprenticeship programs, previous high school credits and successful completion of the GED exam.

"HAS IT BEEN five years?" graduates of the Romulus High School Class of 1981 might ask. There is a concerned group from that class who wants to sponsor a five-year class reunion. Any people interested may call 292-9489.

AN ARMED ROBBERY at the Clark Gas Station on Ecorse Road in Romulus occurred Thursday night, Romulus police reported. There were no injuries when two men entered the station, produced a gun and demanded money and cigarettes which were supplied by the lone female attendant.

dan's dogs

dan a. morris

Sooner or later we must face the fact we will lose our dog to death either by illness, accident or old age. Describing the pain this brings to us and our family is unnecessary to those of you having gone through such a sad time. To those of you who have ever experienced the loss of a pet, description of that sorrow would be inadequate.

Sometimes the best remedy for the mourning of our dog is to do a loving thing - purchase another. Not only are you filling the void left by the passing of your dog but, you are giving another dog a good home, ample food, quality medical care and, most important, love.

The best time to bring another dog into your home differs per individual. Remember, you are not, nor could you ever, "replace" the dog you recently lost. Many people feel so guilty about the thought of loving another dog as they did the first one, they decide to forego getting another one. If this is best for them, then enough said. But loving another dog can be very therapeutic.

When you bring a new dog home, try not to compare it to the first. Even when we switch to a different breed than the one we lost does not always guarantee there won't be comparisons.

So what if the first dog behaved better sooner? This one will, too, with patience, guidance and love. Don't forget - our dog is the best barometer in the house and if you feel disappointed in him, he will sense that feeling and will behave negatively to gain the attention he feels he is lacking.

Each dog, like each of us, is different - different in behavior, different in temperament, as well as different in appearance. Even pups from the same litter are all unique. But they possess one identical quality - the ability to love and be loved.

Dogs provide us with constant affection and devotion. They don't care how we look or what language we speak. They have no prejudices whatsoever.

er. Once you've made a dog a member of the family, it is almost impossible to be without one.

Car phones ring up business in area

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Even as the local telephone company officials urge the area to "reach out and touch someone," the makers and distributors of car telephones are reaching out and touching the bankbooks of a few local retailers.

"We've been in the car telephone business for about one and one-half years now. It's in the last 12 months that business has really picked up," reported Peter Constantakis, manager of Car Tunes of Westland.

According to Constantakis, the recent surge toward an in-car communication system is a result of the drop in prices for the phones, a drop that has meant an almost 50-percent savings from years past.

"It's still a very new business. But, it's a growing business," Constantakis said of car phones. "It's growing in proportion to the drop in prices."

The manager of the store for radio and electronics systems for automobiles reported that the average car telephone averaged about $2,100 just 16 months ago. Today, however, a budget-priced model can sell for around $800 with the bulk of the multi-features phones going for about $1,200, Constantakis said.

While business executives and those individuals who operate their careers out of their cars represent the vast majority of car phone buyers, Constantakis said that eventually a car phone will be standard equipment on all cars. That day, however, is some 10-12 years down the road, he added.

"Right now, the phones are basically for business people. A car phone can be a rather expensive proposition for the average person just to have a phone in the car," Constantakis said. "I think it's a ways away yet before you'll see the average person with a car phone."

Car telephones, unlike the home models, work without wires. Constantakis explained that a radio impulse is sent from the car to a base station within the area. This pulse is then sent, via cellular switching towers, to the intended receiver of the phone call.

Currently, phone quality is at home-phone quality along the major expressways, the metro Detroit area, Flint and Saginaw, the store manager said. Cellular towers have not been set up throughout the state or nation to allow unlimited calling, although such a possibility isn't that far down the road, he said.

Two phone companies offer cellular phone service—Cellular One Communications and AT&T. According to Constantakis, the quality of individual phones is equal on both systems and the price of the phone itself only reflects how many extra "frills" are available on the phone.

With the Cellular One service offered by all phones installed at Car Tunes, a basic service charge of $7.50 is accessed to users along with a 35-cent per call fee. Package discounts are also available, Constantakis said, with 150 minutes of phone use selling for about $75.

And while he sells only about 25 car phones each month, Constantakis feels strongly about participating in what he feels will be the booming business of the future. With another price drop that could lower the cost of car phones to about $500, the store manager said everyone could soon be reaching out and touching someone while easing on down the road.

"I think that in the next decade you will be able to make phone calls from your car coast to coast," Constantakis predicted. "I think this is the beginning of a very big business."

A matter of choice

Next Tuesday, every registered voter in the state of Michigan will have a chance to exercise a power that people throughout the world envy and have died for. Many will not use their chance at engaging in the action that is at the very core of our society and our governmental structure. While many would and have died for the privilege to vote, others cast the chance aside without a thought of the true meaning of the opportunity they have.

That privilege, obviously, is the chance to go to the polls and vote...but this time that vote is even more significant of the democratic society and way of life. We will not be asked to choose the men who will actually fill the elected positions and run our municipalities, courts, county and state, but we, those of us who vote, will choose the very candidates allowed to compete for our final votes in November.

Why is our finest hour ignored by those who ought to be reveling in the thrill of standing in a voting line, of entering the privacy of the election booth and choosing the candidates to favor with our most precious right, our vote? Can any of us imagine the impact such an opportunity presented to those in South Africa? In Russia? In parts of Asia and South America?

Perhaps the greatest tragedy of all is that such an imagining is too far removed from many of our lives, too far from our tiny sphere of reference to comprehend. Our very lives, our

Our endorsements

There will be difficult choices at the polls next week when voters select the men to appear on the ballot in November. We did not realize just how difficult until we began to compile our list of endorsements--that is, our choice for the best men for the job.

It wasn't an easy job, and there were a multitude of disagreements, arguments and disappointments regarding some of the choices, but we all did agree, it was well worth the time and the effort.

If we were, as a group of newspaper editors and writers, to select candidates at the polls next week, we would make the following choices. Individually, however, we must admit, that there would be some dissention and alteration of choice.

Our choices for the office of governor would be ☒ James J. Blanchard the incumbent candidate. As his Republican opponent, we would choose ☒ Dick Chrysler. Blanchard is obviously a hard-working, effective administrator. He did indeed take a chance early in his administration with the tax increase, but his judgment appears to have been sound. He is becoming more and more an experienced politician who knows the ropes, and less and less "the boy governor."

As his opponent, Chrysler, despite some ugly publicity, seems to be the man for the job. In this campaign, which doesn't seem to smack of strong issues, Chrysler still manages to inspire the confidence of people. He has proven himself as a corporate administrator, and he truly seems to understand the people who might become his constituents. While beating Blanchard will be difficult for any campaigner, Chrysler appears to be the best chance the Republicans have.

In the 15th District race for the opportunity to represent the area voters in the Washington House, we would choose ☒ William D. Ford. Ford, the incumbent, has years of experience on Capitol Hill, and is a man who knows his business. He can stand on his record of service and expect to do very well indeed with voters.

As his opponent and a viable Republican candidate, we would recommend ☒ Peter Bundarin. While being in the same position as many other Republicans this election, that is, facing an opponent as strong and experienced society, our way of life and our government depend more on the willingness of our fellow citizens to exercise the unparalleled privileges we have in this country.

“Our very lives, our society, our way of life and our government depend more on the willingness of our fellow citizens to exercise the unparalleled privileges we have in this country.”

When will we all begin to realize that as fewer and fewer of us vote, fewer and fewer of us control the very destiny of our country? It is conceivable that by not voting, we are allowing ourselves to become subjected to a very subtle and insidious form of tyranny?

We do not only suggest that you vote, we urge you and plead with you to take someone else to the polls. If you are not registered, we do not ask that you register, we ask that you find someone else, a friend, neighbor, relative, and convince them that they, too, should register and then, next election, vote.

Think about the men and women who have died so that you might go to the polls. They gave their lives. You are asked for half an hour or so of yours. Somehow, it seems a bargain, any way you look at it.

as Ford, Bundarin appears to have a grasp of the meaning of the job, and a feel for the local people and issues.

In the 17th District, we would recommend ☒ Sander Levin. Also an incumbent, Levin has also proven himself in the job. His opponent Calvin Williams, appears unchallenged for the Republican nomination.

In the state Senate race in the sixth district, we would give the nod to incumbent ☒ Robert Geake. For competition in the race, we would choose Democrat ☒ Scott Bassett.

In the 10th District state senate race, our choice would be ☒ Patrick O'Neil as the Democratic nominee and Bill Runco who runs unopposed.

In the 38th District race for state representative, we would choose incumbent ☒ Justine Barns the Democratic incumbent. As her Republican opposition, ☒ George Erdei of Westland might stand the best opportunity to curry voters' favor.

In the hotly contested, and somewhat controversial race for the job of Wayne County Executive, only one Republican, Bob Murphy is seeking the job. From the wide and well qualified field of possible Democratic opponents, we would, with much difficulty, settle on ☒ Edward McNamara. While other candidates were very effective, particularly Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano and Frank Wilkerson, McNamara's proven administrative abilities and political savvy seem to make him the best qualified of the extremely qualified field.

In the 11th District race for the Wayne County Commissioner post, we would again go with the incumbent Democrat, ☒ Milton Mack. appears to understand his job and do it very well. He is approachable and responsive to his constituents. His Republican opposition Scott Press runs unopposed.

For the same post of Wayne County Commissioner in the 12th District, our choice would be incumbent ☒ Kay Beard. Her Republican opposition Gerald L. Cox will also be unopposed.

The primary ballot is long, and somewhat confusing, but the choices are important ones. Please, take the time to make them and make them wisely.

Peshawbestown

Last week, I had quite an unusual experience...perhaps it was more of an adventure. I haven't quite sorted out my feelings about my encounter with Peshawbestown, yet, and perhaps that's why I'm having difficulty characterizing my visit.

For those readers who are unaware of the existence of Peshawbestown, as I was, let me explain. Northwest of Traverse City on highway M-22 is an American Indian Tribal Center. The Ottawa and Chippewa people inhabit land granted to them by the federal government, and on this land they have constructed and operate a legitimate gambling casino.

Indian land, such as this, is subject only to federal law, and as there are no federal laws which prohibit casino gambling, Michigan restrictions do not apply.

Susan and I were in the north country attending the Small Business Association of Michigan summer board meeting. Sid Lammer and his wife, natives of Traverse City, piqued the curiosity of a number of us by telling us about the phenomenon called Peshawbestown.

It didn't take much coaxing by Sid to encourage some of our more adventurous group members to go exploring, with Sid offering to guide the way. After all, we all went north to learn more about the free-enterprise system. We didn't leave disappointed.

While the buildings looked new and well-tended in the evening light when we arrived, the motorcycles outside made me wonder if this were the Hell's Angels favorite night spot. Admission to the playing area is $10 per person and then all liquid refreshments are free...as long as you keep gambling.

I have visited Reno and Las Vegas, but have never engaged in gambling at a casino, other than a few coins invested in slot machines. It has been my conviction that money wagered is money gone. If you can afford to be without it, and consider the parting both entertaining and sporting, then enjoy. I, however, have always considered business all the gamble I care to take, and have yet to purchase my first state lottery ticket.

This was my perspective when I entered my first game of blackjack. An indian woman named Fay was our dealer and as she spread the cards before the challengers facing her, there was an air of confidence that was hard to miss.

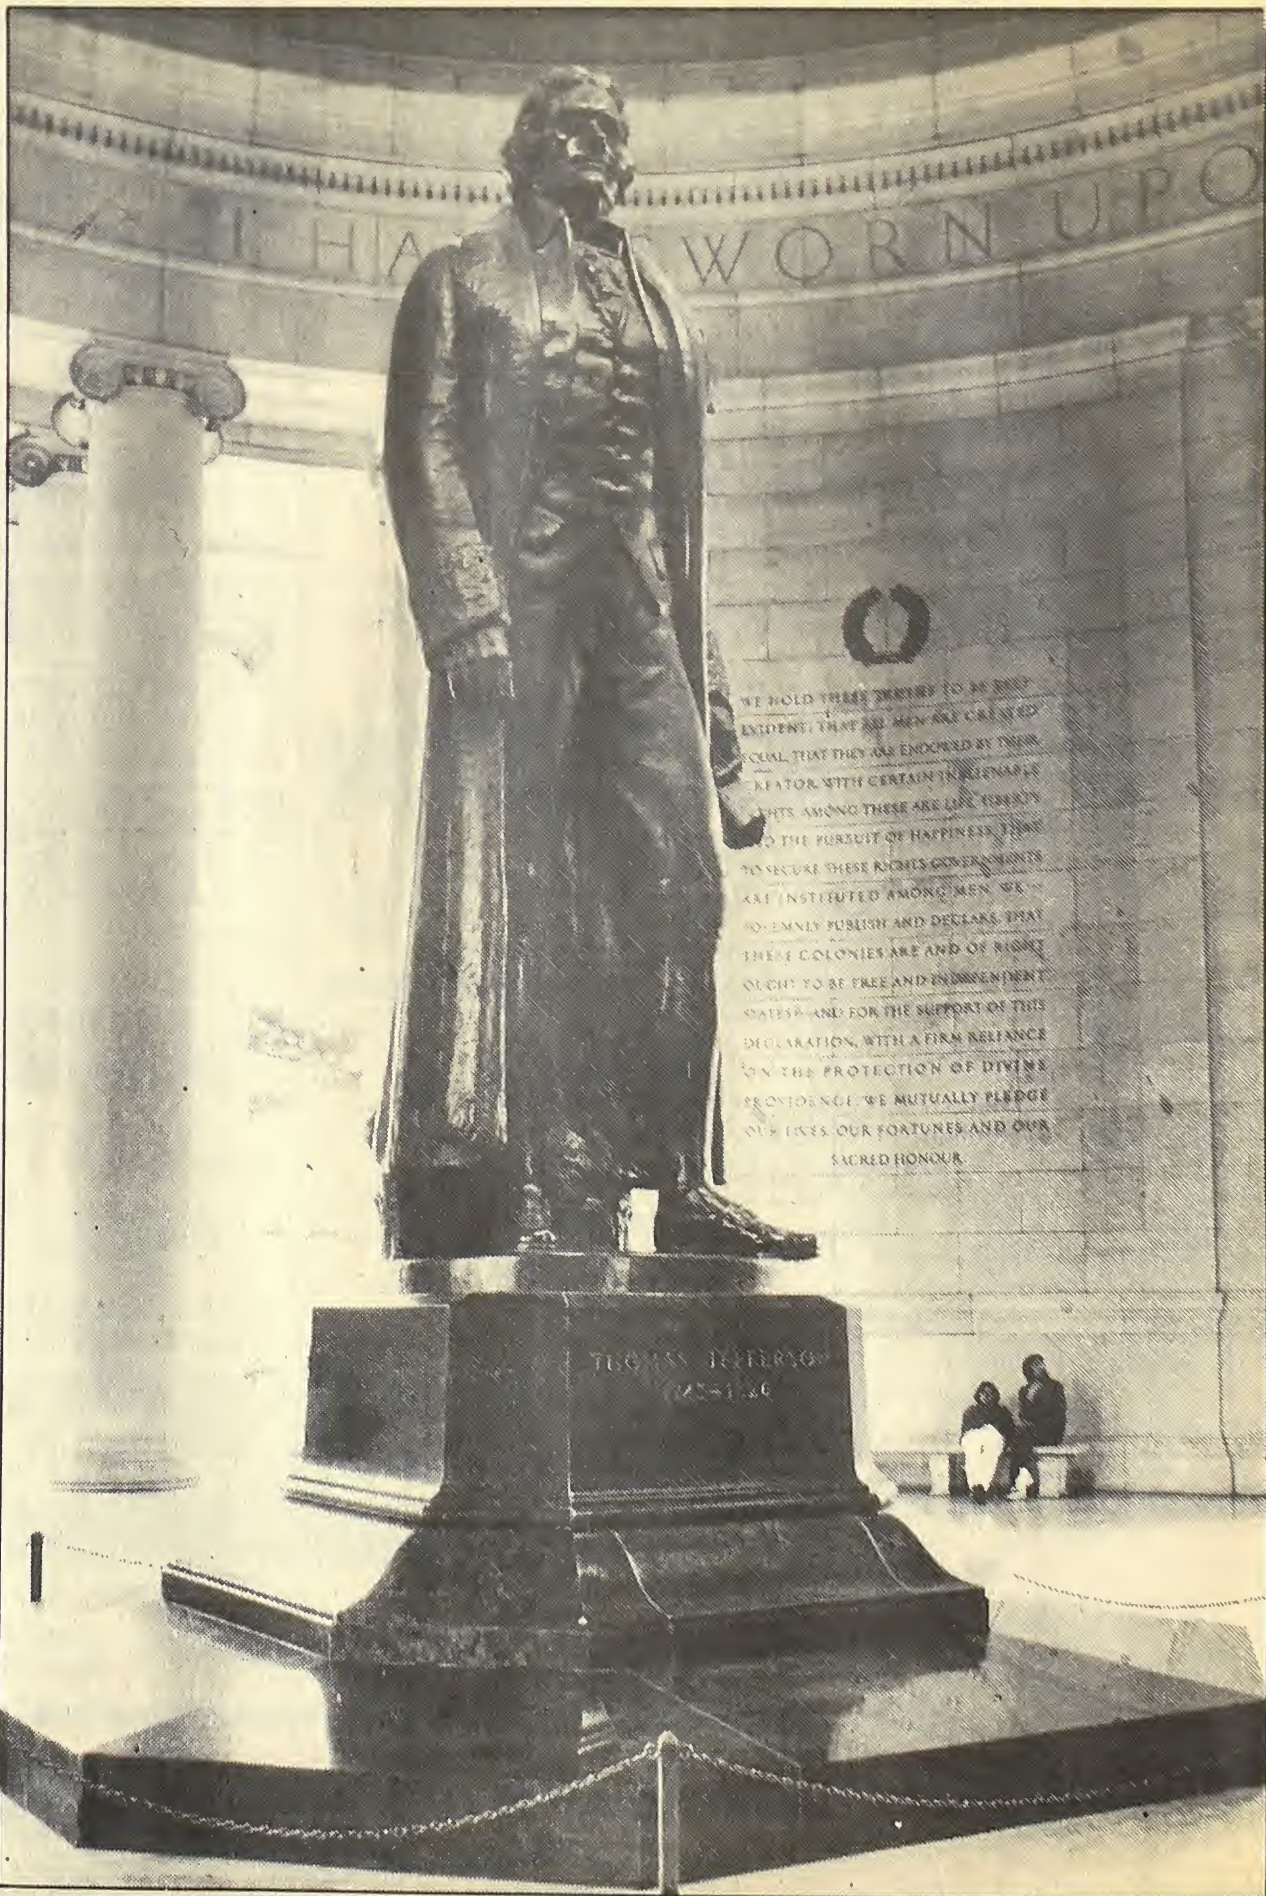

"Thank you for the try, sir," she would say politely as she separated the patrons from their money. "Changing $20," she would call out to the pit boss as she exchanged money for chips. He would signal approval and the money would disappear through a narrow slot in the table with the aid of a slender instrument designed specifically for the task of pushing folded bills into the safe below. "Changing $100. Thank you for the try, sir."

The cards came out of the rack with the speed of machine-gun fire. Before you could add them up, your cards, and your chips had found a new home. Bets are $2 minimum, but to my eye are often in the $5 to $10 range.

I was successful enough to prolong the inevitable for nearly two hours, but in the end, my theory was upheld conclusively. Poker, blackjack, craps and bingo are all part of the entertainment. The atmosphere is pleasant, relaxed and upbeat. Clearly visible, however, is a uniformed federal marshall which provides assurance that you are parting with your money with skill, not chicanery. Burning issue

Permit problem plagues incinerator

Wayne County Commissioners have approved a resolution asking state authorities to bow out of permit procedures for the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority trash burning plant.

The authority operates incinerators located in Dearborn Heights. The trash burning facility has been shut down due to renovations that were needed to bring the incinerators in line with federal clean air regulations.

Earlier this year, the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission decided before the incinerators could burn trash again the sanitation authority would have to get a permit from the state of Michigan.

For decades, however, no state level permit was needed to operate the incinerators. A permit from Wayne County was sufficient.

Last Wednesday county commissioners approved a resolution asking the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission to rescind its decision to get involved with the permit procedures.

The resolution was introduced by Commissioner Kay Beard who said she drafted it and became involved in the permit issue because, "I live in one of the communities and represent three of them," referring to the five communities which form the sanitation authority that operates the incinerators. The five communities belonging to the authority are Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Wayne and Westland.

Beard's resolution, which was approved by a unanimous vote, states, "...Be it resolved that the Wayne County Commission strongly urges the following:

"That the MAPCC (Michigan

Air Pollution Control Commission), as expeditiously as possible, reconsider and rescind its action of May 20, 1986 requiring CWCSA (Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority) to apply for and obtain State installation permits;

"That the MAPCC reaffirm its reliance upon the WCAPCD (Wayne County Air Pollution Control Division) to resolve air pollution control matters in Wayne County and to issue installation permits for facilities located in Wayne County..."

When asked whether or not the state air pollution control commission will heed the advice of the resolution Beard said, "That remains to be seen."

A special three-member committee appointed to make a final recommendation to the state pollution control commission on whether the commission should rescind its action, was scheduled to meet Tuesday in the Upper Peninsula. A committee decision on the matter was expected to be heard at the meeting.

At least one high-ranking member of the state pollution commission disagrees with the present stance and hopes the committee will recommend that the state bow out of the matter.

"There really isn't any necessity for the state to get involved in this at this late date," said Alan Greenberg, vice chairman of the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission.

Greenberg said if the incinerators are required to receive a state permit before operating again it could mean "another delay while the state went through its review."

Greenberg added that a state permit would not necessarily mean that more renovations would have to be made at the trash-burning facility.

He did not say how much of a delay a state permit requirement would mean for the plant.

Greenberg said state officials want the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority to apply for a state permit because the plant is now considered a "new facility."

"The Mazda Plant is a new facility and has to get a state permit," Greenberg said, explaining that the Dearborn Heights incinerators are by contrast an existing facility.

"It isn't a new source. It's an existing source," he said. "It was built and put into operation in the 1960s."

Commissioner Beard, when informed of Greenberg's position on the matter, said, "I'm delighted to hear that."

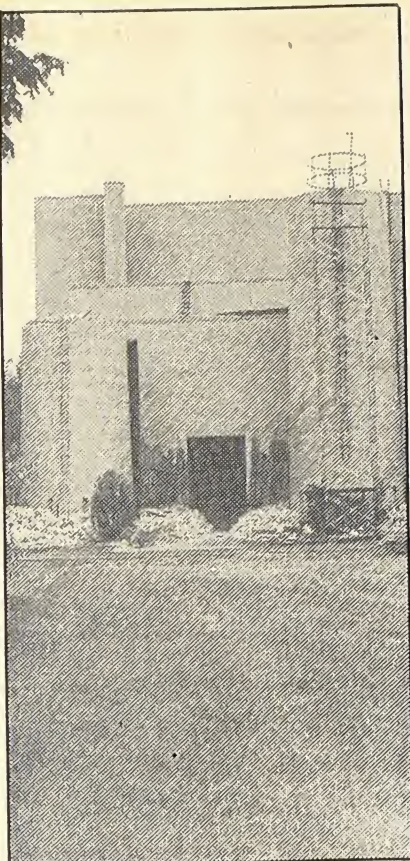

"They (state officials) have always acknowledged that the county has jurisdiction (over the incinerators)," Beard said. "I just don't understand."

Greenberg said at the meeting where the decision was made to require a state permit for the plant, only a few state pollution control commissioners were present.

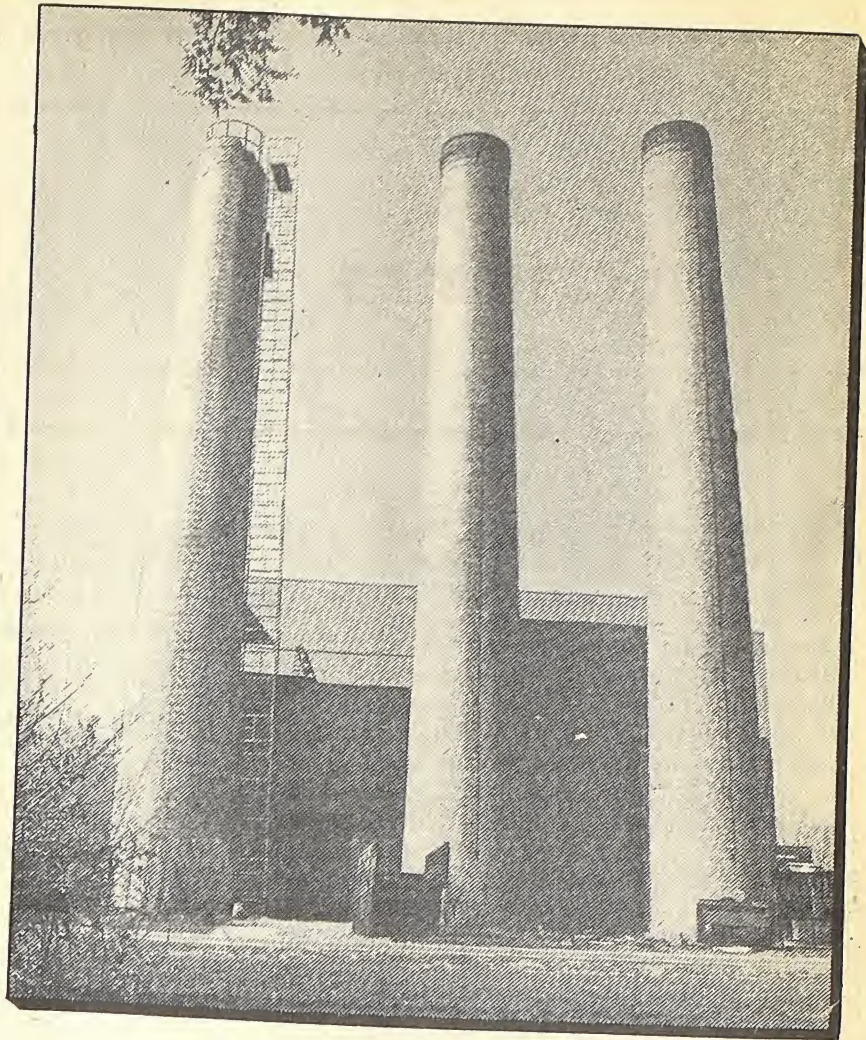

Out of the 11 commission members, six were present at the meeting and two of the six were alternate commissioners, according to Greenberg.

Over his objections, the commissioners adopted the measure by a vote of 4 to 2.

"It certainly wasn't a fair representation," Greenberg said. The vice-chairman of the state commission said he does not know what the next step would be if commissioners decided to stand by the May 20 decision.

The Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority incinerator remains closed awaiting results of a permit dispute.

Legislators join incinerator battle

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Four local state legislators have joined in the fight to get the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority incinerators burning again by asking the state to kindly "step aside."

Rep. Jim Kosteva (D-Canton), William Keith (D-Garden City), Justine Barns (D-Westland) and Richard Young (D-Dearborn Heights) have jointly authored a letter to the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission urging the body to reverse a May 20 decision which halted the conversion of the incinerators to a non-polluting waste disposal method.

In the letter, the state lawmakers cited a federal court consent judgement which was designed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency spelling out the steps the Authority should take prior to bringing the proposal before voters last June.

"The State was formally and informally advised of and elected not to participate in (the judgement order)," stated the letter. "The Authority's proposal is completely consistent with the requirements of that judgements and was engineered at a cost of approximately $300,000," said the letter.

The letter concluded urging the group to reconsider their vote and allow the incinerator project to proceed as planned.

Copies of the letter were given to all members of the Commission who met in Ironwood yesterday to discuss the issue. Results of the latest vote were not available at press time.

Brando would have been proud of me, the way I contributed to the Indian cause.

The Ottawa and Chippewa tribes have been living in the Great Lakes area since 12,000 B.C., or so I'm led to believe. Contrary to rumors, and the grey hair, I wasn't there. They are a people trying to survive in this so-called modern world.

Court tests on two similar Indian gambling operations threatened this needed source of revenue for the Indian Band coffers. As the money at Peshawbestown is divided and used for the entire Indian community, rather than falling into the hands of one or two entrepreneurs, tribe leaders feel they are immune to court challenges of the legitimacy of their operation.

To be sure, my visit to Peshawbestown was a learning experience. The sense of what it's all about may become more meaningful in the months ahead. Talk of legalized gambling in Detroit may bring the issue closer to home.

If table or casino gambling is legalized, Romulus would no doubt become a haven for such activity. The proximity to the airport and the prime location for convention and tourist business adds to my suspicion that gambling could have a serious impact in our local communities.

It may be that residents and leaders of our area may be required to sort out their feelings about the gambling issue as a matter of personal impact if the question goes to the public for a vote.

I will tell you that I found my visit to Peshawbestown interesting, entertaining and educational, although I presume it was both my first and last experience. Then again, that may be just what General Custer thought.

See you next week.

Postmaster Olser has been doing some good work ingrad-ing up the sidewalks in town.

The trial of Parsons, Fielden and Spies in Chicago is causing great excitement on all sides and simply because the outlook is that the heathen rebels will get their just deserts on the gallows. It has already been conclusively proved that the three have preached destruction to the government and to its people. More than once since the trial began have the prisoner's eyes started from their sockets as some new piece of villiany was brought to light. They tried to lead a set (group) to commit depredations which they would at once sneak out of. They lead the mass (crowd) that were in the memorable hay-market riot on the evening jof May 4, 1886.

Many do not understand the duties of the postmaster as regards the refusal of persons to take publications from the Post Office. Yesterday a paper was returned with the following written on the wrapper: To the Postmaster - "The next failure to comply with my request not to put this journal in my post office box will be reported at Washington." X. Section 248 of Postal Laws and Regulations states (in part) the postmasters have nothing to do with journals arriving at an address and are required to deliver the pre-paid matter to the persons named in the address.

Considerable adverse criticism has followed th erecent encampment of state troops at Island Lake. Co. Pennington, the inspector detailed from the regular army is expected to make a report that will now be wholly flattering to the discipline of the Michigan Troops. It is charged that the boys have distinguished themselves more by the quantity of poor whiskey they have guzzled than by the efficiency in military drills.

All-Stars shine at state

Westland's Broncos finish 3rd at state 'AAA' baseball tournament

Call them the "Cardiac Kids", call them "Murderer's Row", but the one thing you can call the 1986 Westland Bronco AAA All-Stars are winners.

Winners not just because of claiming the district baseball championship at Dewitt or their third place finish at the state tournament in Waterford over the past weekend, but winners because the 14 young men never quit in their quest for excellence.

Under the guidance of Manager Gary Pack and coaches Joe Basiaga, Keith DeMolay and Jeff Durtka, the 14 young men who made up the line-up of the third best AAA team in the state were molded into a cohesive unit in three weeks in preparation of taking on the state's best in Bronco Baseball.

The Broncos' tournament run, which saw them capture six of nine games before bowing out, was like a replay of the 1968 Detroit Tigers' campaign when the only question to be answered was "Who's Today's Hero?"

For example, after arriving in Dewitt on July 18, the Westlanders took on Stockbridge as Dion Halibozek and Lyle Thomason combined on a two-hitter for a 15-0 victory. Danny Salva scored the first run of the tournament for Westland, a tap that would never run dry.

Chris Kirkey's RBI double in the second and Gerard Romej's two-run homer in the fifth put the icing on the cake.

Two hours later, Westland returned to the diamond in 90 degrees heat and took care of host Dewitt, 16-6, as Romej and Joe Basiaga connected on back-to-back homers in the first inning. Brannen Udell's RBI double keyed a seven-run sixth inning that put the game away.

...But disaster struck the next day. The Westlanders took on Waterford and suffered an 18-11 loss but not before they served notice that they would be heard from again.

But disaster struck the next day. The Westlanders took on Waterford and suffered an 18-11 loss but not before they served notice that they would be heard from again.

With their backs to the wall, Jason Stanke took on Dewitt and fired a 5-hitter at them while fanning six batters en route to a 6-3 victory. Thomason chipped in with a pair of run-scoring hits and the infield took care of 12 of the 21 outs.

Now it was time for the drive to the title. Thomason put them

Building a 10-5 lead by the fifth inning, Westland seemed headed for an easy victory but Waterford rallied for six runs to take an 11-10 lead. But Westland hadn't traveled 90 miles to lose. They rallied to tie the score in the seventh, then won it in the eighth when an intense Rusty Fowler lashed a single to center for a 13-11 lead.

Halibozek picked up the victory and when Martin Potter, who had scored the winning run, scooped up the ball and threw it to first for the final out, it was time to celebrate.

Now it was state tournament time.

Taking on St. Clair Shores for an opener, the Westlanders fell behind 7-0 but refused to die. They rallied to tie on back-to-back triples by Romej and Steve Fuller, a double by King and a bases-loaded walk to Potter. But the Shores came back to edge the Westlanders 8-7, and again the Broncos found themselves up against the wall.

Back they came the next day with an impressive 17-7 victory over Waterford, keyed by an 8-run first inning including a bases-loaded walk to Mike Andrews. Fuller drove in five runs in the onslaught and got the save for Stanke who put them against Garden City.

Never mind the 5-3 setback Garden City inflicted upon the Westlanders...the 14 young men, their manager, their coaches, and families will always remember.

And in the words of Winston Churchill, "It was Westland's finest hour."

MAACO eyes national fastpitch softball championship

Romulus's Lisa McClure, Kim Picciano, Jennifer Daniel and Michele Scarrow have found their way into the line-up of Taylor MAACO's fastpitch girls' softball team that is eyeing a berth in the national tournament.

"We have an excellent team this year," said Coach Fred Coleman whose minions have amassed an 8-0 league record and an 18-4 over-all mark during the summer campaign. "This team has some of the standouts from Taylor, Allen Park and also Romulus.

Coleman points out that McClure, Picciano, Daniel and Scarrow have "contributed immensely toward the success of our club.

"We just hope to continue to improve and win," Coleman added.

MAACO was tied for first place in the 18 & Under Taylor fastpitch league with the Taylor 18 & Under team. This team captured the state title.

The 15 and Under group has stashed away the Metro State Championship, boasting a perfect record en route to the title. The championship was decided between Talor and Lake Orion with the local girls emerging with a lopsided 18-2 victory.

On July 26-27, MAACO was slated to play in the Mid-East

Regional Championships at Veterans Park in Arbor. The tournament featured the outstanding teams from Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and the best of Michigan.

The winner of the Ann Arbor tournament will qualify to compete for national accolades in New Mexico for the national 15 & Under tournament. Last year's winners were both Michigan teams.

MAACO's state-winning fast-pitch softball club could be making a trip to New Mexico later this summer if it can continue to win. Coach Fred Coleman's team won the Metro State Championship in the 15 & Under Division.

Who'll wear the crown?

Romulus softball season is heading for stretch

Exploding for seven runs in the second inning, title-contending Leonardo's turned back St. Lawrence Corp., 11-5, in a Romulus softball game.

The victory kept Leonardo's in the thick of the title race with Sun-N-Snow which looks down from the top of the standings with a 16-3 won-lost record. Leonardo's has a 15-4 record. Also in the pack and not out of the picture is the Bohemian Brothers who are 14-4 on the year.

Gary Hardrick led the assault on St. Lawrence pitching as he drilled two homers. Teammates Brian Block and Matt Perry checked in with three singles and a triple, respectively.

St. Lawrence collected a single and a triple from Alan Hamaker while Allen Hayes came through with two singles for the losers.

Sun-N-Snow managed to keep its first place cushion with a 10-5 victory over the runner-up earlier in the month as Larry Clesno ripped three consecutive singles, Al Lameroux homered and Paul Debuyscher doubled in two runs for the winners. The league-leader jumped on Leonardos for four runs in the first inning and never relinquished its lead.

In other action, Five Points

Bar scored twice in the first inning, added four more in the second and went on to defeat St. Lawrence 11-7. Don Kennedy latched on to three singles while Keith Drake and Kevin Schewe each had three runs batted in for the winners.

On the other side of the ledger, Chuck Marsh laced a double and a pair of singles - good for two RBIs, while teammates Marty Hamilton and Andy Alarie contributed three and two hits, respectively.

In the meantime, Romulus Video maintained its two-game lead in the Women's Division thanks to a rare 4-0 shutout of Wheat & Rye. Cathy Bartz, Karen Houle and Judy Kwek each banged out two hits for the winners. Wheat & Rye, seated in third place, collected two hits each from Karen Barton and Mary Day.

The league leader also disposed Senate Coney Island, 16-0, exploding for three runs in the bottom of the third, then adding five and six runs in the fourth and fifth innings, respectively.

Bartz belted a pair of homers and singled for the winners while mates Mary Batterson and Vicki Whaley also homered.

Huron Merchants kept its slim title hopes alive with a 12-2 victory over Holiday Inn as Sandy Cobb drove in three runs thanks to a pair of singles. Monica Offman also counted two RBIs while Pam Roberts connected for a single and a triple.

Holiday wasted excellent hitting performances by Janet Hollister and Sue Henry who each had three singles.

After spotting Timely Air Freight two runs in the first inning, Huron rallied for three in their first, then struck for nine in the next frame en route to a 15-4 victory over their rivals. Deanne Dulecki hammered a homer and two singles in a two RBI evening while teammates Bessie Gracia and Robbie Scarborough each had two singles.

Bev Johnson led Timely's assault with two home runs and four runs batted in. Teammates Kathy Foster and Connie Miller chipped in with two singles each.

Walter's Bar shot down Allied Aviation 20-3 with Jane Shafer erupting for two homers and four runs batted in. Gail Blanchard picked up two three-baggers and a single, while Peggi Hope slammed a pair of singles and two doubles.

Wheat & Rye tilted the scoreboard for nine runs in the fourth inning and claimed a 16-3 lopsided victory over fifth place Allied. In their 17-hit assault, Mary Day and Jane McBride each had a homer and single. Lisa Bratcher sliced two singles.

Players face dilemma

The Spotlight Players have a behind-the-scenes crisis now that the facility it is using for the storage of props and scenery is no longer available to the community theatre group.

The recent sale of Washington School by the Wayne-Westland School District will require the group to remove scenery, props, lumber and paints from the storage site before the end of October.

Although some set construction and assembly was done at the Washington School prior to the staging of shows at John Glenn High School, the main concern of the group is for a storage area, according to David Rago, publicity director.

Approximately 3,000 square feet is needed to house the theatre group's equipment, he said.

"If a new storage site is not found soon," Rago said, "it will be a significant problem for the Players."

The group's first offering of the 1986-87 season will be "Harvey," and it is the hope of the Spotlight Players that a new home for the group's equipment will be available when the giant rabbit makes his presence known on stage.

People who may have a storage site available can contact Vicki Cravens at 326-5242 or Debra Swain at 729-6453.

All positions in the comedy-mystery are salaried.

Three roles for women and 14 male roles are being cast.

Video cassette recorders are the hottest thing in entertainment, even though outdoor summer activities have cooled off the demand slightly.

According to Brian Cole, manager of Curtis Mathes Home Entertainment Center in Westland, summertime television reruns provide an impetus for movie fans to rent some films, settle back in the comfort of their homes and enjoy everything from John Wayne and Sylvester Stallone to Disney films and "Wrestlemania." Among the most popular of the new film releases is the "very hot" "Jagged Edge," plus "Jewel of the Nile," "Spies Like Us," and "Back to the Future."

The newly-arrived "Delta Force," also is expected to be a popular hit.

Cole said there are approximately 1,200 movies in the "library of films," which includes between 700 and 800 different titles. Movie renters range from teenagers who prefer the "chop-em-up" horror films to senior citizens who rent tapes of the films they remember from their younger years.

"One woman came in with her kids and checked out some John Wayne movies. She told us she wanted to 'start her kids out right' with the movies she

Cable television producers are area 'spotlights'

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Jerry Millen of Wayne has a new favorite number - 31. That's the station number of the television company in Ann Arbor which just recently picked him and his "Spotlight" cable television show up for broadcast T.V.

But, Millen would like to have a few other numbers in his bag of tricks, numbers like 20 and 50 for the respective television stations he hopes will likewise adopt his show as their own later this fall.

The originator of Video Vox, an all-music-video cable television predecessor to Spotlight, 18-year-old Millen hopes his volunteer work in producing and on-the-air talent will "make a name" for himself as well as provide him with valuable experience in his future acting career. And along with co-producer Kenny Slotkowski, 19, Millen is wagering his future success on his current television "baby."

"It's a mixture of concert clips, movie clips, interviews and videos," Millen said of his new show. "We just did our show down at the Ann Arbor Art Festival. Anything that is entertaining we feel we should go out and shoot it."

Millen has been appearing on local cable television in Wayne and Inkster for about one year with his Video Vox program. Although the more than 5,000 potential viewers for the show sounded pleasing to the new producer of the movie business, a potential audience of 1.5 million at 7:30 each Saturday night on Channel 31 sounds even better.

But life must exist beyond Ann Arbor television, Mullen has assured himself, and television stardom in the Detroit stations has therefore become a major goal. And as for down the road a few years, Millen has his hopes set on the Big Apple to provide him the needed spark to enter into the hot competition of the movie industry.

"We're going to approach Channel 20 and Channel 50 maybe later this fall. They serve the Detroit area and the more systems we can hit the better off we are," Millen explained. "Right now we want to make a name for ourselves. If we can go big here, we can make it in New York."

Millen is learning the hard way that breaking into "the business" isn't as easy as Hollywood would make it. Even with the connections interviews with big-name stars such as Jermaine Jackson, the Fat Boys, Shirley Eader and an exclusive invitation to pop-rock singer Prince's birthday party have garnered the two, show business is tough when it comes to competition, Millen admitted.

Both Wayne Memorial High School graduates will sharpen their video editing and on-camera skills this fall while taking classes at Eastern Michigan University. While that stint in college could last only one year as the big break may come along any time, according to the show-business hopefuls, Millen is focusing all of his efforts into the show which once a hit in the Detroit area could be the key to unlock the doors of show business in the future.

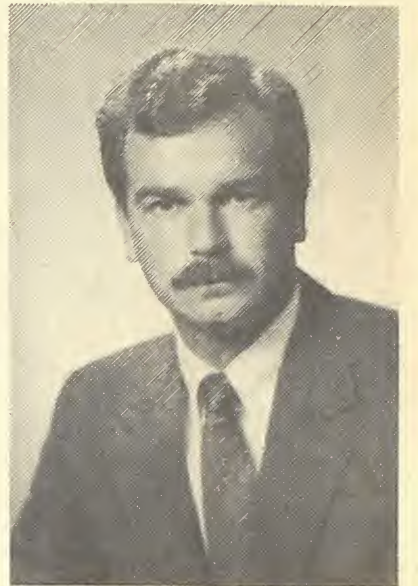

Millen (above on television) and Slotkowski are both producers and talent for the "Spotlight" show.

Just plane crazy

Yankee Air Force flies high on history

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

If you've got a spare B-24 bomber from the World War II era lying around, the members of the Yankee Air Force would like to hear from you.

If you can't come up with the plane but can garner up a certain amount of excitement about the bomber and its counterparts, then the group would still like to hear from you or even see you in person, according to Sherry Giesler, public relations chairman for the YAF.

The Yankee Air Force is an all-volunteer group of aeronautic and plane enthusiasts headquartered in Ypsilanti which has set out on a mission to preserve a piece of aviation history. With their goal to research, restore, preserve and educate, the YAF members hope to give others a glimpse of aviation in the days prior to space shuttles, lunar landings and orbiting satellites.

"This September will be our fifth anniversary. We have grown to over 2,000 members. We now have four divisions in addition to our headquarters here (in Ypsilanti)," Giesler said of the group.

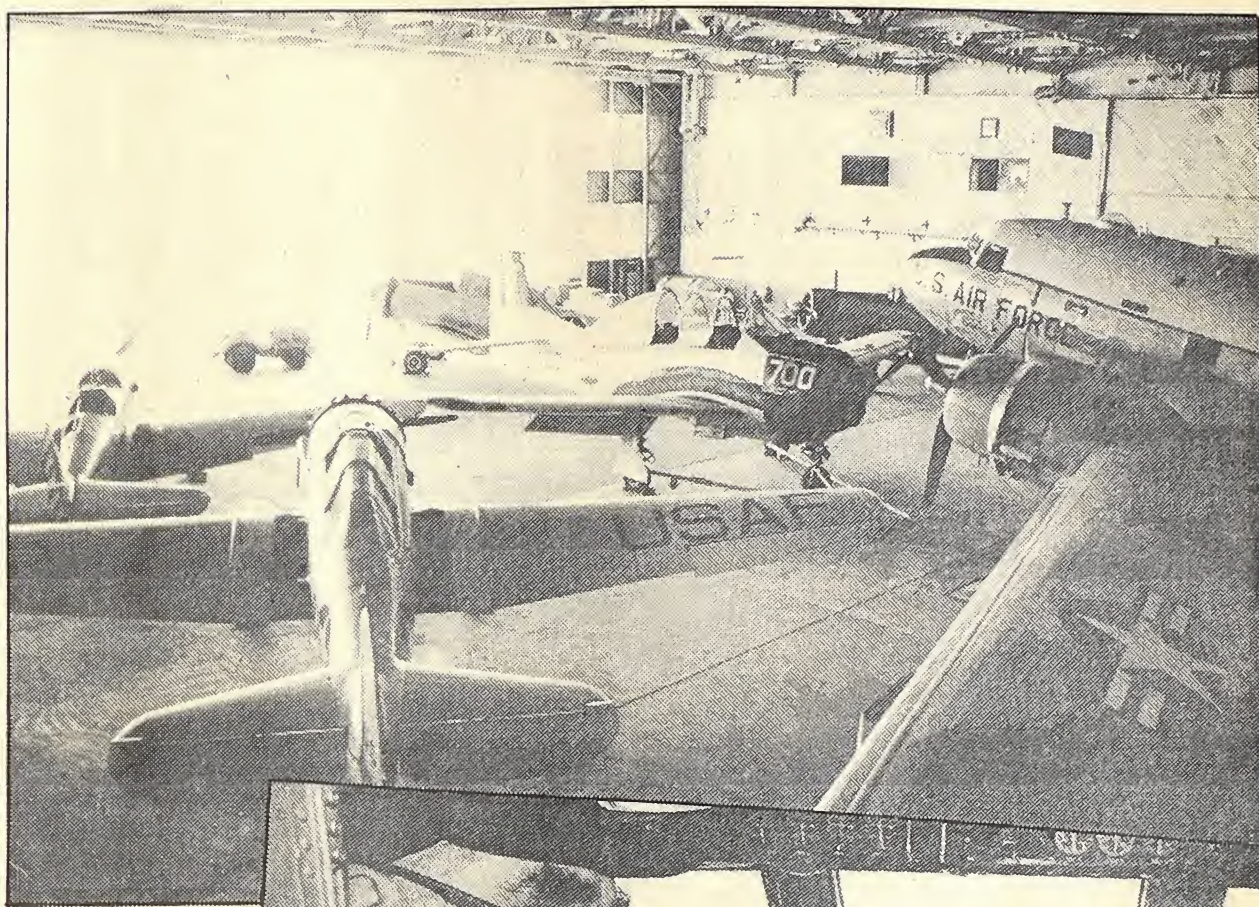

The YAF members are responsible for the renovation of one hangar of the Willow Run Ford bomber plant during WW II to an aviation museum complete with a C-47D, F-86F Sabre and B-52 Bomber as well as rooms dedicated to various facets of aviation history.

Thus the 1940s sounds of welders and grinders in the Ypsilanti-based bomber plant - the first and only plant to manufacture airplanes in an assembly-line fashion - and the shrill of the bell which sounded every 55 minutes when a new plane was produced have now been replaced by the sawing of boards and patter of footsteps as YAF members continue the restoration effort and provide daily tours.

The museum was started in 1981 after an idea proposed by aeronautics enthusiast Dennis Norton grew into a reality. Norton and some friends had been reminiscing about the B-24 years at the Willow Run plant and thought a museum commemorating the era might be appropriate.

After several trips and phone calls to officials in the U.S. Air Force and Marine Corps, the Yankee Air Force Museum obtained the first pieces of its budding collection of aircraft. After the official opening ceremonies, more artifacts, more donations and more members came flying in, making the YAF one of only a few prominent aviation preservation groups in the country, according to Giesler.

"This hangar itself is probably one of the few remaining ones from World War II. It's all wood obviously because of how precious metal was during the war effort," Giesler said. "The majority of our aircraft here are on static display and are on loan from the Air Force and Marines."

The one-time B-24 bomber hangar at the Willow Run Airport now resembles an aviation museum with a collection of rare "birds" lurking about. At the right, one of the members sits behind the controls of a B-52 bomber of the Vietnam era.

Outside the hangar can be found the host of planes on loan from the military which have been given to the museum on a temporary- or permanent-basis. Included in the collection are the pride of the YAF members - a B-17 and B-52 bomber, acquisitions that Giesler feels are extremely rare for an organization as young as the YAF.

"In just a year now we've grown to at least 11 aircraft. We are the only private museum in the country to have a B-52. It's our Vietnam Memorial," Giesler explained.

The huge, kaki green, B-52 bomber is of special significance to the group, Giesler said, because it survived an enemy attack that could have destroyed it. "Clyde," as it was dubbed in Vietnam, was hit by a Vietnamese shell that became lodged in the plane and was set to explode. The shell was apparently a dud, however, and all crew members aboard returned safely with the aircraft from the maneuver.

Although YAF members can point proudly to the plane as a symbol of the success of their organization, Giesler said an even bigger acquisition would be a B-24 bomber, one of the 8,000 that were produced at the Willow Run Plant in the early 1940s. Such an addition to the YAF plane collection would be quite commendable, Giesler admitted, as only three flyable B-24s are left in the country and one has a purchase price of $1 million, an amount slightly out of range for the non-profit organization.

Nevertheless, the search for a B-24 isn't the only task occupying YAF members' time these days with a fifth anniversary celebration slated for September. According to Giesler, the event - which will feature a two-day plane exhibition with aircraft being flown in by the military and two days of celebration and merriment - has most members working overtime.

Planned are several guest speakers and lecturers on aviation during the Founder's Day event Sept. 13 and 14. Some 8,000 hot dogs have already been purchased for the festivities, a small clue as to the popularity the event is expected to attract, Giesler said.

And after the gala event has flown by and it's "business as usual" for the YAF members, one goal and one task will still remain, Giesler said.

"You can read about history anytime but, this organization has an opportunity to save it so people can see what history was like," Giesler remarked. "That's our goal. It's giving the future to the past and this is our chance to save the history of aviation."

The Yankee Air Force Museum is located off Ecorse and Beck roads in Ypsilanti. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2. For more information or to learn how to become a YAF member, call 483-4030.

Drive to airport is pilot's fear

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Sherry Giesler of Ann Arbor worries each time she travels in her car to the airport. But once she's some 10,000 feet above the traffic and automobile congestion, Giesler's worries escape her and the feeling of excitement overcomes her.

Giesler is the owner and pilot of a small twin-engine plane which she flies as a hobby. Although it was only three years ago that the 42-year-old earned her wings, Giesler would rather fly these days than travel by any other means.

"It's such a feeling of freedom especially when you're flying and looking down at the traffic jams beneath you. There's no other way to go," Giesler said.

But this love for the airways hasn't always been at the root of Giesler's heart. Months before she flew her Grumman-Cheetah plane on a solo mission, Giesler was "dragged off to Osh Kosh, Wis.," to participate in an airshow. But, the trip back didn't come with much hesitation, she admitted, as the three-days of flight shows had sparked a new hobby.

The following 10 months were spent in flight school, preparing for her pilot's license from the Federal Aviation Association. Once she had aced the books and paperwork of the airways, Giesler took to the skies in her husband's plane.

Giesler can still recall the feeling which overcame her on her first solo flight - Dec. 17, 1983, 80 years after the Wright Brother's first flight - as she described it as "better than anything I had ever felt before."

"The thrill of flying yourself is a challenge, it's personally rewarding because you do it all yourself, you are in total control," Giesler explained.

Privately-owned planes are becoming more popular, Giesler said.

Earning their wings: Cadets master airways

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Who said that only the older generation could enjoy the thrills of flying?

Not the 13- to 18-year-old members of the International Cadet Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol who meet weekly to learn aeronautic skills as well as perform valuable safety services to all airline passengers.

The organization is an all-volunteer auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force and is organized in a fashion similar to the armed forces. Wing commanders and colonels are common terms for cadets and a strict military dress code is the rule.

The Wayne-Westland chapter of the Civil Air Patrol meets each Tuesday at the First Baptist Church in Wayne under the direction of Squadron Commander Michael Donovan. During the meetings, cadets are drilled and educated in the three functions of the organization - aerospace education, leadership training and military practices.

"The purpose of the Civil Air Patrol is to teach aerospace. We also serve in many emergency functions," Donovan said,

"with approximately 80 percent of all search missions done by the cadets."

According to Donovan, the Civil Air Patrol is responsible for scouting out planes that air radar devices have picked up as being down on the ground or missing. While cadets are only allowed to perform this function using automobiles or government-provided vehicles, senior cadets - those older than 18 - many times use helicopters and search planes to complete their assignments.

In addition to being given the task of finding the downed plane, Civil Air Patrolers have been instructed in first aid techniques to be administered to the victims of a plane crash. Thus, Donovan said, the mission of the organization is both military and civilian.

To locate a downed plane, Civil Air Patrolers are given a general description of the vicinity of the plane by radar, Donovan explained. All commercial and private planes are equipped with an emergency locator transmitter which trips off the radar devices upon impact with the ground and gives a clue to the location of the plane.

Although the search and rescue functions by members of the Civil Air Patrol are perhaps the most visible and important, Donovan added that membership isn't all work. Last weekend, members toured the aviation museum at an Ohio Air Force Base as part of their "leisure" activities. Other social outings and gatherings are also in the planning stages.

Currently, 21 cadets make up the local branch of the patrol along with four senior members and Commander Donovan. Although the local chapter is only six years old, many years of experience by the organization founders and leaders have played a part in the successful continuation of the nationwide group.

"I was a cadet many years ago. I dropped out and returned as a senior member," Donovan recalled of his early years in the Civil Air Patrol. "Cadets join this because they have an interest in aeronautics. But they also learn skills in moral behavior and leadership as well."

Membership in the cadet squadron is open to youths ages 13 to 18. Senior members - those older than 18 - are also accepted. For membership information, call 721-6847.

ler said, especially in corporate business. But, she added, big business isn't the only section of the population that can afford the hobby.

"People are scared away because they think they can't afford it. It's not the price of the plane that's expensive, it's the radios," said Giesler.

While admitting that airplane dealerships don't abound in the metro Detroit area, Giesler said that planes can be found for sale as near as Pontiac and Ann Arbor. Many new models average around $80,000, she said, while a used plane can sell for about $20,000.

Today, Giesler and her husband can be found enjoying a leisurely flight to Chicago, Jackson or Mt. Clemens for breakfast or dinner or perhaps a bit of sight seeing. Long-distance trips may be to South Bend, Ind., or perhaps Boston, while a jaunt over to Mackinac Island can be the perfect way to spend a weekend, Giesler said.

"What I really like when I go out toddling, as I call it, is to fly down the Detroit river," Giesler said. "It's beautiful. It's just really great."

And while she will admit with a chuckle that just four years ago wild horses couldn't have gotten her up some 13,000 feet above the city, Giesler said that fear isn't the feeling a pilot has up above the wild blue yonder.

"You have to look out when flying. There are certain altitudes you can fly at and you have to be really cautious," Giesler said. "But, I don't worry when I'm up there. It's not fear you're feeling when you're flying."

"What I worry about is the drive to the airport. That's the really scary part."

Jeff Meade

He left England out of protest

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

When government leaders in central London decided to construct a new road through a local restaurant, owner Geoffrey Mead became very angry. In fact, Mead became so angry that he packed his bags, boarded a plane and opened a new business in Belleville.

Mead is now the owner of the English Derby restaurant on East Huron River Drive in Belleville. A different lifestyle, perhaps, Mead was quick to admit, but one that he wouldn't give up now for anything.

"I had a meat store in England and the local township was tearing it down for redevelopment. They offered me a new store at a rent you can't afford," Mead said with his distinct English accent. "So, I just packed up and left."

America was no strange land for the 50-year-old London native as several visits to local friends and relatives had preceded his move to the New World. Loneliness in the romance department didn't last too long either as Mead met and married a Belleville native soon after his arrival.

"We met at an awards banquet in Ann Arbor," Mead said of his new love. "She works for me now in the mornings and for Ford in the afternoons."

Mead will be eligible to become a U.S. citizen this year, a day he looks forward to with excitement. However, citizenship comes with a price, Mead added, that price being a large amount of time spent in the classroom learning American customs and law.

"As soon as I can find the time, I'm going to become a citizen. You have to take classes," said Mead. "As long as I work and pay all of these taxes here, I might as well be able to vote."

Although Englishers speak English, Mead said, the language in the States isn't quite the same, as he soon learned.

"I thought I would move to America because we speak the same language. I learned quickly that's not true," Mead chuckled. "My biggest problem is that I have to slow down. In London, everyone talks much faster than here."

Language wasn't the only aspect of American life that Mead found to be at a different pace. "Here everyone is much slower. The people are friendlier here."

"I wouldn't call Detroit a 'big' city. In London we have eight million people. But, you can do just as much here," Mead explained.

And what if the local leaders in Belleville decide to level his new business for a road or a redevelopment project? Mead said his feet are planted on American soil for good and that he has no thoughts of turning back.

"I've lived all over. In France, Italy, Spain, Germany, Belgium, the Far East and Mexico," Mead said. "I would never go back. I love it here. This country has been very good to me. I've really not even got the urge to go back and visit."

And after being in the States for a little more than seven years, Mead has caught on quickly to the American free-enterprise system. With a restaurant in Belleville and a catering business on the side, Mead has every intention to expand and plunge deeper into the "slower-paced, friendlier" American business way of life. That is, of course, if his wife permits it.

"I work 15 hours a day, seven days a week. I keep busy but, I'm going to buy somewhere else," Mead said of his future. "My wife keeps saying if I do, she'll kill me. She doesn't see me as it is now."

"But, we have a mutual love - me. She thinks I'm fantastic and I do too. No, she's a terrific wife," he added with a laugh.

Homemade ice cream will have them screaming

The making is easy

I scream. You scream. We all scream FOR ice cream!

Will all due respects to Haagen Daz, Dairy Queen, Frusen Gladge, and the omnipotent Dove Bar, you just can't beat good old-fashioned homemade ice cream. Even the most basic homemade vanilla ice cream recipe tastes like something the folks at Baskin-Robbins charge extra for. Homemade vanilla can give me goosebumps. Add some chocolate, fresh fruit or chopped macadamias and my goosebumps turn into sheer delight.

If you aren't lucky enough to have kept the old handcrank freezer grandma and grandpa used to keep in the fruit cellar, a quick trip to a cooking shop will surely make you wish you did. Nowadays, ice cream can be made in anything from a $19.95 polyethylene drum with a molded polypyrene dasher and with an electric motor encased in what else? (polypropyl vinyl)-all the way up to a $500 electronic gizmo that will chill, blend, mix, churn, beat, freeze, ripen and just about do everything except serve the sweet, chilling concoction. I spent a few days last week making ice cream in everything from two coffee cans (something a second grader down the block taught me) to a plastic bucket, to a chilled stainless churn and the results were remarkably close. Not basing my results on speed or ease of making, most of the finished products were exceptional. The same recipe was followed in each case and I can honestly say the ice cream in a $19 plastic maker was very close, if not equal to ice cream made with the $500 miracle worker.

For the curious, ice cream makers were invented in 1846 by a young lady named Nancy Johnson. It is pure rumor that Nancy sold the rights to market her maker to Elsie the Cow.

By law, ice cream manufacturers are allowed to use some 1200 different stabilizers and emulsifiers in their ice cream product. It is a proven fact that high-priced additive-free ice creams like Haagen Daz don't always do so well in taste tests. It seems that the addition of monoglycerides and vegetable gums make the product last longer on the long journey from the making to the supermarket shelves. Of course, that's one great reason (as if you needed one) why it's even better to make ice cream at home.

If you're thinking about getting a freezer this weekend (it's supposed to be another scorcher), here's a few tips you might want to remember for the best tasting, no-fail product that will have the neighbors and kids begging for more.

chef larry janes

If possible, make the cream mixture or custard the night before the actual freezing and allow this mixture to sit in the fridge for at least eight hours. This gives the ice cream more yield (volume) and makes a smoother tasting product. If you can't make the mix the night before, at least allow the mixture to thoroughly chill before starting the freezing process.

If, at the end of about 20 minutes of churning/freezing in an ice cream maker, the mixture is still runny or soupy, add more salt. A good rule of thumb to remember is to use about 15 pounds of ice and three cups of rock salt to the batch. Of course, more salt and ice will be needed for the ripening.

Speaking of ripening, once the ice cream has been made, remove the dasher and allow the creamy concoction to "ripen" in the ice and salt mix for at least 30 minutes to one hour before eating. This will harden up the mix and make it perfect for scooping.

If your mixture freezes too rapidly, it will be icy, grainy and somewhat chunky. Sorry Charlie, you blew this one. You added too much salt to the ice and the ice was made too rapidly in the freezer. Give it to the kids, but make another batch for yourself.

Last but not least, a few words from the ultimate gadget freak. If you are "to ice cream" as "macadamias is to nut" then you must invest in a Zeroll ice cream scoop. Seldom do I find the need to really recommend another gadget that sits around being used once a year, but this baby is a winner. The secret? A special non-freezing liquid has been added to a hollowed-out handle. This enables the user to scoop, dip and spread the ice cream continuously without having to rinse off. The ice cream just slides right off the scoop. Are there any ice cream freaks in your family? One of these scoops and a copy of "The Great American Ice Cream Book" by Paul Dickson (Antheneum, $4.95) along with a jar of rock salt and four half-pints of real cream will make you a friend or lover for life.

Try some of these recipes and let me know. You think your recipes are better? Drop me a line in care of this newspaper.

Bon Appetit! or as Don Johnson of Miami Vice always says - "chill out!"

CHEF LARRYS' SECRET MACADAMIA CHOCOLATE CHIP ICE CREAM (Makes enough for one)

- 3 cups heavy cream (or whipping cream)
- 1/2 cup Nestles Quik instant chocolate dry mix
- 2 cups chocolate chips
- 3 eggs
- dash salt (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla (pure, not flavoring)
- 1 cup chopped macademia nuts

In a bowl, combine cream, Nestles Quik (dry), eggs, salt and vanilla, Mix until smooth. Chill until cold. Freeze according to manufactures directions.

As ice cream begins to get hard, stir in chocolate chips and chopped nuts. Allow to ripen in the freezer for at least one hour to harden.

ANY BERRY ICE CREAM (Serves 8)

- 4 cups fresh or frozen berries
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup sugar (or 3/4 cup of honey)
- 3 cups heavy cream
- fresh berries

Line a strainer with cheesecloth. Set over a large bowl. Combine berries with water and sugar in a medium saucepan. Slowly bring to a boil. Reduce the heat and simmer 10 minutes. Pour into cheesecloth strainer. Let stand till juice has drained into a bowl, about 30 minutes. Gently squeeze pulp to extract any juices. Mix 2 cups of the juice with the cream. Process in a freezer as per manufacturer's directions. Just before finished, add whole or sliced berries. Allow to ripen and enjoy!

HAZELNUT AND CARAMEL ICE CREAM CAKE (Serves 10)

- 1 1/2 cups amaretti (Italian macaroons)
- 1/2 cup hazelnuts, toasted, chopped
- 3 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1 quart caramel, caramel fudge or praline ice cream
- Caramel Sauce:
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 3/4 cup water
- 1 cup whipping cream

For the crust:

Oil the bottom of a 9-inch springform pan. Grind the cookies in a processor to fine crumbs. Add hazelnuts and stir in butter with a fork. Press evenly into the bottom of the pan. Freeze until firm, about 20 minutes. Soften ice cream in refrigerator until spreadable. Spoon into a prepared crust and smooth the surface. Freeze until firm.

For the sauce:

Heat sugar and water in a heavy saucepan over low heat, twirling pan occasionally until sugar dissolves. Increase heat and boil, without stirring until light brown. Meanwhile, heat the cream to a simmer. Reduce the heat to keep warm. Reduce the heat of the syrup to low and cook until the color of maple syrup, about 4 minutes. Carefully and gradually, add the heated cream; when bubbling stops, mix well. Place in a shallow pan of water over low heat to keep warm. (sauce can be prepared up to two days ahead) Place the cake on a platter, remove springform sides, serve with warm caramel sauce.

STRAWBERRY TOFU TTI

- 1 pound fresh frozen strawberries
- 1 pound tofu, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup honey
- a dash of fresh grated nutmeg

Combine all ingredients in a food processor and process until smooth and no-longer chunky (about 4 minutes). Place in a metallic bowl and freeze, then re-process just before serving.

Candidates fight for survival

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Voters in Wayne County will head to the polls next Tuesday to decide one of the hottest political contests ever for the county executive's seat.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and remain open to 8 p.m. Although a wide range of candidates and issues fill the voters' selection, a low turnout is expected.

"Usually, the primary elections are very light. We sent out 307 absentee ballots. As of this morning we have 154 returned. Our absentees usually determine how the vote will turn out," Wayne City Clerk Norma Collop said Monday. "But, I'm always hoping for more people to come out."

The primary election is designed to narrow down the race for the Nov. 4 general election for both political parties. Although many candidates are running unopposed in the primary, some contests boast a fight for survival among nine candidates, as is the case for the Democratic candidate for county executive.

Following is a voter's guide designed to define the views and opinions of the candidates running in the primary election. Candidate questionnaires were mailed to all candidates running in the race by the Associated Newspapers. Only those that responded to the survey are included in this section.

Why did you decide to seek this office?

This county faces three major crises — jobs, dope and AIDS. None of the other candidates are capable of coping with these combined emergencies. As an associate of Lyndon LaRouche, I am.

Having chosen public officer as a career, I look forward to applying my professional experience to resolving the problem of the day. I look forward to the challenge of leading the citizens of Wayne County through these difficult times and toward a brighter future. I am confident I can provide effective leadership.

I do not run for this position merely to oppose any man. I have a strong feeling about what must be done that I'm obliged to do all that I can do to bring about needed change. Change in the equity of representation for all of Wayne County is needed. To accomplish this goal, we will include changes in the basic precepts of the Democratic party.

As a state senator, I helped write the charter for the county. I want to be a part of the reform with a new port authority planned that would attract new business. I feel with both an executive and legislative branch of government in the county, we have a good system for checks and balances.

I have been very happy as mayor of Livonia for the past 16 years, but the most critical problems facing the area cross city boundaries and need to be addressed on a regional level: economic development, crime and roads. The county executive has the potential to impact the quality of life for the people of Wayne County in many positive ways if the communities can be united to attack our problems together.

If this office is directed right it can do a great deal of good for Wayne County. The present and temporary head of County Commissioners have let the power of this office go astray in their quest for power. They must stop abusing the office of drain commission. We should continue this office to act as the "keeper of the county" to protect our environment. This office should have subpoena powers to stop hazardous waste and chemicals from going into our salt mines and waste fills.

I know the challenges and understand the problems. I am ready with practical, achievable solutions. I have the experience, the temperament and the compassion for leadership. I intend to turn this county around as county executive. I know this county and each of its departments. I want to be county executive to improve and streamline county government, upgrade county employee morale and promote improved conditions of low income and working people.

I have served Wayne County for the past 15 years. I have participated in all the major decisions required to bring our county back to fiscal responsibility. I have reviewed all other candidates for this office and am confident that I have the best qualifications and determination not to allow Wayne County to slip back into the financial chaos of the past. I am the only candidate that realizes that the next Wayne County Executive will have to provide the leadership necessary.

Why do you feel you are qualified to fill the position you seek?

I tell the truth about real issues. The other contenders put the voters to sleep with mindless chatter, sloganeering and show more interest in their images and hair styles and other fantasy life than in political reality. As a LaRouche Democrat, I won't owe these corrupt politicians — these big egos with small minds — one single thing.

I alone have county-wide administrative experience and a proven record of efficiency and service. I believe the citizens of Wayne County deserve active and vigorous leadership and expect a spirit of cooperation between all elected officials, labor and management and other diverse groups within Wayne County. I believe I can best provide that leadership.

I have been involved in the political arena since 1973. Currently, I am the treasurer of Sumpter Township. I am an executive consultant for a computer company and am a master planner and coordinator for management information systems.

I have been a live-long resident of Wayne County. I care about the county. I have experience in administration and am intelligent enough and have the proper foresight to make the county work.

Sixteen years as mayor of Livonia, eight years on the Livonia City Council and eight years as President of the Dearborn Township School Board have given me the broadest range of experience of any candidate. I am the only candidate to have brought in a single business or job to Wayne County. In Livonia I have a record which demonstrates that crime can be curbed effectively. I am the only candidate who has done the things all the candidates are promising they will do if they're elected.

In my years, I have traveled extensively, worked with many groups, worked as a labor organizer, sat on board meetings with executives, managed million dollar complexes. I have worked with budgets and within the limits of the financial need. The ability to direct and delegate and find the right hands and mind for the various segments of the county will be my strong point.

I have served on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners since June 1973. During this service, I have had the opportunity to serve in almost every capacity of leadership including chairman of the board at a time when chairmen not only represented the legislative function, but also a function of the chief executive officer of the county. As an attorney with 25 years of practice, I have taken an active part in preparation of the county charter and evaluating contracts, ordinances and regulations.

I am confident that I have the ability, temperament, and personality to enhance better cooperation between Detroit and the suburbs and unite our county to work together. I have had the opportunity, over the last 15 years, to visit and speak to all part of Wayne County and to work with most of the leaders of Wayne County local units of government. They trust me and know me to be a man of character and integrity. I will provide new leadership that will guide our county into the next century.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election, and what are your opinions on each one?

Drugs, AIDS, jobs. We need a real war on drugs targeting especially the banks, brokers and citizens above suspicion who launder dope, profits, confiscate that money and jail individuals. In addition, since dope is invading our shores, a formal declaration of war against it is in order. Additionally, we must halt the spread of the deadly AIDS virus which no longer threatens just society's fruits and nuts but the general public.

For Wayne County to grow and prosper, we must control crime, control spending and create jobs. Presently, jail space in the county is at a premium. As simplistic as it may sound, more space is needed. Creative financing must be utilized and better design implemented in order that tax dollars be saved. Additionally, juvenile crime must be attacked vigorously. Conversely, while ending additional beds, officials should be obligated to investigate Alternative Sentencing Programs.

We shall define the true meaning of financial awareness. I will form a citizens watchdog committee composed completely of Wayne County residents. This committee will investigate all phases of Wayne County government in all actions of the present county government. My administration will be an open one. We will run the county like a business.

I want to focus on certain areas of the county which have particular problems. I want to draw the county together as a unit, make county residents think of themselves as a body working together. Crime is also an issue. I have proposed an economic development program with a military outpost on the Detroit River which would utilize the Metro Airport facilities and stimulate economic growth.

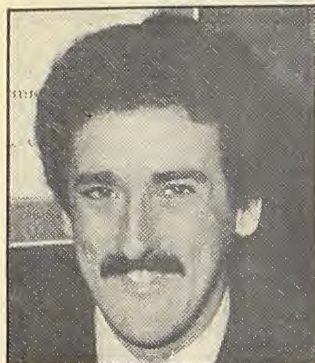

Office of the Drain Commissioner — I believe it should be abolished. Taxes — they should not be raised. Cooperation — the bickering between the CEO, the commission and the sheriff that has gone on for the last year has paralyzed county government and has significantly contributed to the fact that the county is facing a $30 million budget deficit this year that no one is addressing effectively. The finger-pointing and name-calling between elected county officials is counter-productive and have to be curbed.

Bring the road commission back from the confusion that the county commissioners have created. We must not let the county commission get its hand onto the Wayne County Register of Deeds and eliminate this elected office. It is on their agenda to combine it with the county clerk. Lets make Wayne County the convention center of America. Make the county feel like an ever going carnival and circus, fell the excitement, it can be done.

Anti-crime measures: Increase detention facilities for major offenders and expand programs for minor adult and early youth offenders. Health concerns: Develop improved systems for health care, mental health care, infant mortality and toxic hazard reductions and preventative care of the indigent population. Industrial and commercial growth: Develop marketing incentives, promotions and strategies. Invite more recreational proposals from independent developers.

Wayne County must continue to operate with a balanced budget, without raising taxes. I plan to streamline our government to make it the best in the nation. The Drain Commission Office must be abolished by the voters in November. I will devote all possible Wayne County resources to the development and enhancement of small business.

Biographical background

Milton Mack is 37 years old and has lived in Wayne since 1948. He attended Wayne Memorial High School, Henry Ford Community College, EMU and WSU. He is presently employed at Tucker, Barbour & Mack, P.C. as an attorney.

Kay Beard is a 33-year resident of the district. She attended Madonna College, Wayne County Community College and Wayne State University Adult Education. She has certificates in gerontology, adult foster care and hotel-motel management.

Scott Press is 25 years old and has lived in Wayne all his life. He graduated from John Glen High School in 1979 and is presently employed at Press Communications, a communication, cable and broadcasting service company. He is the youngest member from the 15th District of the Michigan Republican State Committee.

Why did you decide to seek this office?

Because over the years Wayne County government had become an unresponsive institution which was failing in its mission to serve the public. The adoption of the new charter presented a unique and challenging opportunity to make substantial reforms in county government.

I am running for re-election because I enjoy the opportunity to represent the people of my district and to be involved in making changes in county operations that have positive impacts on the citizens of Wayne County. I am a full-time commissioner and am very serious and conscientious about my position.

I feel that Wayne County will never run efficiently with 14 Democratic commissioners and only one Republican commissioner on the board. The people of Wayne County desperately need a check and balance in their governing body which will be able to hold commissioners responsible for their action. Specifically wasteful spending and mismanagement.

Why do you feel you are qualified to fill the position you seek?

I have served two terms as a county commissioner and feel my experience as well as my education qualifies me for the position. I believe I have demonstrated a commitment to good government and the ability to get things done.

I served four years under the old form of county government (plus nine months filling an unexpired term in 1978, prior to my first election), and at the end of this term will have served four years under the new charter form of county government. This has given me valuable experience and insight into problems that need to be addressed as well as looking to future county needs.

I am the only candidate for county commissioner that comes from the private sector. I don't believe that you need to be a career politician to manage county government. I'm a life-long resident of Wayne County. I have managed my business, my books and my employees in an efficient, and effective manner. These are the standards I will bring to the office of county commissioner.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election?

The county must deliver its services at a fair cost to the public. This means getting the county's financial house in order and exploring alternate means of funding indigent health care as well as doing things like eliminating the Wayne County Office of the Drain Commissioner. The county executive must take charge of county government and be involved in day-to-day management.

The imminent loss of federal revenue sharing — with no way of making up the loss, without asking the voters for additional millage. Trying to maintain a serviceable level of county services for the citizens without having to make additional reductions in staff and programs. We must look for ways to deliver services in a more cost-effective manner. Working with other levels of government and the business community to spur economic development and increase the jobs available.

County deficit. Our current county commissioner has been in office for two terms. Currently the county is facing a $30 million deficit. It is obvious we need a change if we are to get Wayne County back into an efficient, sound business operation. The county's current fiscal problems are due to mismanagement not a shortage of funds. I believe the salvation of the county is improving the economic development, industrial development and creating jobs. This can certainly be accomplished.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election?

We need a family court in Michigan. We should adopt the proposed Marriage and Divorce Act drafted by the Family Law Section of the State Bar Association. We should adopt the Juvenile Code changes reforming the foster care system. We need to adopt the Revised Michigan Criminal Code written by The Michigan Law Revision Committee.

Crime — certainty of punishments. No prisons close to residential areas. Property tax — higher credits for seniors and low income families. Utility rates — our bills are too high. Lower rates will benefit all citizens, will spur economic development and create new jobs.

I am on record opposing unwise tax increases. Prioritizing all spending on absolute needs and to eliminate wasteful spending.

This election year appears to have a lack of issues coming from the citizens. The issues in the campaign are the ones generated by the candidates.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election?

Restructure, educational financing, eliminate property tax as main source of school operating financing. Continued push of economic expansion and economic diversification. Long range state plan for toxic clean-up, state incinerator, etc. Emphasize restitution rather than confinement for non-violent crimes.

The most important issue facing the Legislature is the need to improve Michigan's business climate. To accomplish this goal we must continue in our efforts to lower the cost of doing business in Michigan. There is a definite need for Michigan to reduce the occurrence of crime and to ensure that the public is safe from violent criminals.

Michigan's economy is on the rebound, but much of this is due to actions in Washington rather than Lansing. We need to continue to create incentives to make it more attractive for new, more diversified industries and businesses to locate in Michigan. I opposed the 38 percent increase in the state income tax.

Youth employment, liability insurance reform, education, early childhood programs, continue to ensure that this state is a good place to do business and attract investment capital to compete on an international level.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election?

Taxes and uncontrolled spending. The state budget has risen over 30 percent in the last three years, yet inflation has been about 10 percent for the same period. We need fiscal restraints now! Toxic, hazardous and solid waste must be dealt with now, no more dilly-dallying around. Stop burial now or it will bury us later.

I believe first and foremost that we must protect and continue to improve our public schools. Without a State Representative that supports strong public schools, they would lose a great deal of funding. I also believe that cutting crime is of paramount concern.

We must bring new and permanent jobs to the people of Michigan. In order to do this, we must improve Michigan's perception to the business owners and managers. Unemployment and workers compensation has to be brought into line with other prosperous states.

Reliable and sufficient appropriations must be supported to clean up existing contamination sites. We must also continue to support policies that protect our Great Lakes. It is only through an alliance of education, research and industry that we can bring about long-term economic development.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election, and what are your opinions on each one?

Why the big fuss about Mike Deaver (Reagan former Chief of Staff) representing the Canadian government on acid rain? Why not investigate the hundreds of former federal officials making six figure salaries representing the Japanese? In 1977, according to the Justice Department figures, the country of Japan had 17 registered foreign agents (lobbying and consulting firms) in the United States and our trade deficit with Japan was 1.5 billion dollars.

American's foreign policy, particularly in the Middle-East. Abolish the Federal Reserve System (a private corporation) and return the power to issue, coin and regulate the money supply to the Congress, as stipulated in Article I, Section 8 of the U.S. Constitution. All our economic woes stem from this problem.

The record trade deficits and the resultant job losses have impacted heavily on our area and its citizens. They must be addressed. I have cosponsored every major trade bill considered in the House during the last five years, and trade remains one of my top priorities. I strongly believe that the Federal Government must not cut back on its commitment to education. I will continue to oppose efforts to slash funding for key education programs that benefit our nation's youth.

The failure of congress to reduce federal spending to the level of taxation necessary for sustaining economic growth and balancing the budget. The result is a national debt doubled what it was six years ago. If the national debt is not reduced and interest rates brought down even lower, the automobile industry, basic manufacturing industries and American farmers will continue to face a severe economic crisis with a huge loss of jobs and homes.

The deficit - we must continue to tackle it. Tax reform - we should enact it, in a form fair to middle income taxpayers as well as others. South Africa - we should pressure by all possible means for a complete end to apartheid. Central America - we should not support the Contras. Drugs - we need a full-scale, comprehensive, long-term battle plan. Trade - it's time to act on the de-industrialization of America.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election, and what are your opinions on each one?

There are two major campaign issues. One, over-crowded court dockets, which causes delay in the cases being heard and two, the uncertainty of trial dates, which can be burdensome upon the litigants and members of the bar. If elected, my goals will be the following: Assist in trying to solve the problem of over crowded court dockets by recommending an independent docket system.

Since judicial candidates are prohibited from "making pledges or promises of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of the office," there are no issues as such in a judicial campaign beyond the qualifications of the candidate. Among the problems facing the Wayne Circuit Court are many administrative problems which will require the active participation of the entire bench to resolve.

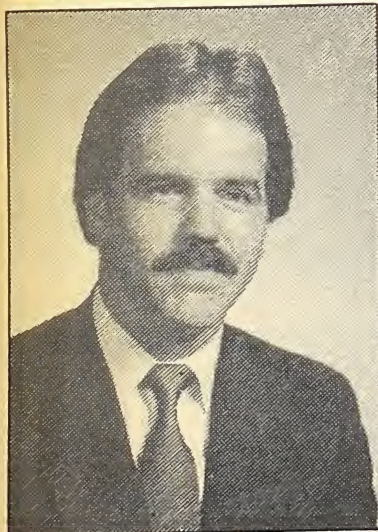

The grave unfairness of the long civil docket. Three to four years is too long to wait for a civil case to come to trial. I believe that the entire 35-judge court should be on an individual docket. This would tend to speed the docket, since each judge would have to work harder; also, it would make each judge more accountable. The judge should hear the victim and/or victim's family in the sentencing process.

The problems that are facing the Wayne Circuit Court include those of any court in a heavily populated metropolitan area, primarily docket congestion. The solution is to commit oneself to hard work. I have worked six and seven days per week in private practice for the last seven years and will continue to devote that type of effort as a Circuit Judge.

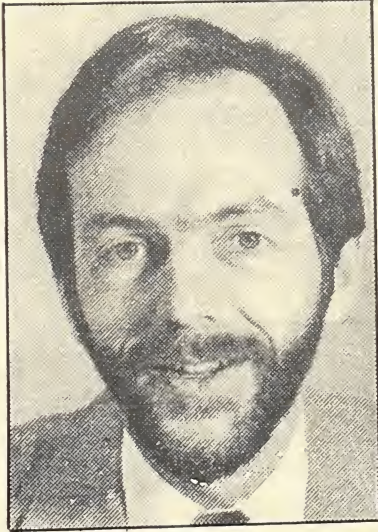

The docket backlog in the civil docket is a major problem. I think that separation of certain types of cases, such as domestic relations cases, from the general civil docket, will speed up both types of dockets. Sentencing consistency is a problem. I think that judges should be more consistent in sentencing convicted criminals, and should do so within the sentencing guidelines.

Instituting an individual docket system so that each judge has his/her own docket and handling those cases from the time each is filed until final disposition. That system would be more efficient and would build in incentives to resolve cases. Ultimately, this system would decrease the docket backlog. Transferring the Circuit Court criminal cases over to the Records Court system would free up additional Circuit Court Judges.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election, and what are your opinions on each one?

The need to elect honest and competent individuals with the desire to work very hard. I believe that my background and experience indicate that I have the necessary qualifications to serve the public well as a Circuit Judge. If elected, my goal is to honestly and effectively preside over Circuit Court proceedings in a timely manner and to treat all litigants and attorneys with fairness, respect and dignity.

Equity and fairness for families upon divorce. I helped rewrite the spouse abuse laws, and have served for five years as co-chair of a special committee that has rewritten all of Michigan's marriage and divorce laws. Access to courtroom (judges, rather than employees). Participate in case management activities of the court. Establish individual dockets.

One of the major issues is the qualifications of the judicial candidates. The extent and nature of my legal background makes me one of the more experienced candidates for circuit court judge. I believe the circuit court should switch from a central docket system to an individual docket system whereby there is accountability by each judge for disposing of cases on the individual docket.

Court dockets should be individualized to provide accountability and reward for the diligent performance of a judge's duties. Judges must be responsive to the people and I will certainly be one who will serve the public through swift and effective administration of justice.

I feel the pendulum has swung too far in favor of defendants and its high time that the interests of the public, and particularly of the victims, be recognized and respected. Our court dockets are deluged and bogged down with an epidemic of frivolous and baseless cases. This is not only costly to us all, but inherently corrupt. Better preparation alone on the part of some judges in hearing motions could very well help to alleviate the backlog.
